The Congressional Budget Office (CBO) is a small nonpartisan agency that provides economic, policy, and budgetary analysis to the Congress. The Health, Retirement, and Long-Term Analysis Division is seeking a health economist to contribute to a variety of projects and analyses in the health area. HRLD’s recently completed work includes multiple analyses of the effects of the Affordable Care Act on insurance coverage and federal health care spending, an analysis of competition and costs in the Medicare Part D program, a study of illustrative options for designing a premium support system for Medicare, and a compendium of health-related options for reducing the federal budget deficit. Ongoing work includes further analyses of the effects of the Affordable Care Act, a study of the drivers of private health insurance premiums, several studies relating to the supply and price of health care services, and further analyses of competitive models for Medicare.

The successful candidate will contribute to the full range of the division's responsibilities, which include preparing CBO reports and testimonies, designing and producing state-of-the-art analytical studies that underlie those CBO products, and constructing and improving the associated analytic models. In addition to producing CBO studies and reports, analysts are encouraged to turn projects or independent research into CBO working papers or outside publications.

Qualifications
Applicants should have a strong quantitative background, excellent writing skills, and a desire to work as part of a team on issues of current legislative interest to the Congress. Applicants must also have a Ph.D. in economics or a related discipline and prior experience in health policy analysis.

Salary and Benefits
Salary is competitive and will be commensurate with experience, education, and other qualifications. CBO offers excellent benefits and an appealing work environment.

How to Apply
Please submit a cover letter, résumé, salary history, a brief writing sample and contact information for three (3) references online at www.cbo.gov/careers.
