Undergraduate Special Opportunities in Artistry and Research (USOAR) is a program that funds student-generated research projects, whether the study is conducted on campus, somewhere in the United States, or abroad. USOAR is open to undergraduate students from all colleges, departments, and majors.

- Student proposals selected may be granted up to $2,500 to carry out the project
- USOAR funds will cover project-related expenses only, such as equipment, travel, and conference registration
- Students have between January 1 and December 31 to complete their USOAR project
- Projects should come under the direct supervision of university faculty members
- USOAR applications are accepted twice a year (October and February)

Upcoming application deadline: October 2, 2015
